Steve appeared on Roll Call’s “Fabulous 50” list of the most influential staffers on the Hill for over ten years and was described by The New York Times as “one of the most powerful Republican aides on Capitol Hill.”

In addition to his time as Chief of Staff to the offices of the Chief Deputy Whip, the Republican Whip, and the Majority Leader, Steve served as personal office Chief of Staff to Rep. Eric Cantor, as well as various policy positions throughout the House and its committees.

Outside of Congress, Steve was elected to the Fairfax City Council in 2008, serving three consecutive terms before retiring in 2014. In 2016, Steve was sworn in as the 11th Mayor of the City of Fairfax and served until February of 2017.

Steve’s government service also includes a distinguished military intelligence career. Steve first enlisted in the U.S. Army Reserve in 1987 and was a 1995 graduate of Officer Candidate School (OCS). Upon receiving his commission, he served as an intelligence officer and was assigned to the Defense Intelligence Agency. In 2003, Mr. Stombres was mobilized in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and served on the Joint Chiefs of Staff as an Iraq Analyst for the Iraq Intelligence Task Force. He retired from the Army Reserve in 2009.
